Dear Friends,

In our efforts to acknowledge the outstanding contributions of women to our community, the Education Committee of the Gainesville Commission on the Status of Women, Inc. invites you or your organization to submit nominations for our 2018 Elizabeth Cady Stanton / Ida B. Wells Award. This award will be presented to two deserving women at the Annual Women's History Month Awards Reception in March at the University of Florida, President's House.

This award is designed to recognize women contribution for women's and/or civil rights which best exemplify the values and accomplishments of Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Ida B Wells

Ida B. Wells (1863- 1932) was a crusading journalist who fought against racial injustice and lectured around the world about the lynching of African Americans. She also worked for suffrage and helped to found the first black suffrage organization. Despite segregation, Wells argued that black and white women should work together to achieve equality.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton (1815-1902) was instrumental in calling the first women's rights convention at Seneca Falls, N.Y. in 1848 and became a leader of the women's movement. The convention passed the Declaration of Sentiments, which set the agenda for the women's movement well into the twentieth century. Stanton also helped to found the National Woman Suffrage Association and edited The Women's Bible.

This annual event is be co-sponsored by the Women's Student Association and the Association for Academic Women of the University of Florida and many community organizations.
